We are to bring everybody on board including non-economic wings of government, regulators, field officials and tax men. Awareness is to be created about economic needs of country and team spirit is to be built. This is the true meaning of "Inclusive Governance". Unless we achieve this, good economic policy cannot be implemented and country will continue to suffer even more.

Democracy has certainly given us a right for protesting, but such agitations should be led with responsibility and without damaging our democratic institutions. Whole world is watching our country, being the largest democracy. In the process of development, some side-effects may happen; we are to learn from our mistakes and rectify. Criticism and mud-slinging will only promote conflicts and will stop our growth, which we cannot afford.

◦ "An earnest attempt in outlining the growth trajectory for India."

Our legal system is influenced by British colonial rule; hence law makers prefer inserting such provisions, which cannot be complied with so easily. Hence, we always depend on the mercy of rulers, regulators and administrators... We are not yet independent for carrying out economic activities in a free manner. Approvals, controls and licenses still hound us.

Our mind set is still tilted in favour of government monopolies with restriction on private sector. We allow private or global capital under compulsion or crisis. Once crisis is over, we return back to our original mind set. We have accepted open economy under compulsion and not by conviction.
